112 With F.M.L.

People who wish they were abler in a particular skill share one of 112's legendary senses of inadequacy.

My inability with tools of any kind amuses those few who have witnessed first hand the touch of an enlightened incompetent. It should frighten them.

I think in terms of reducing whole blocks with explosives in early morning hours, for example, to save untold time and effort on the mall block. But the destruction would be vast if ever a detonator hooked to explosives fell into my hands.

I am good at picking up sticks, a skill learned in the first or second grade. It is a skill as highly developed as my learning "52 pickup", a fascinating card game someone showed me about the same time.

Years ago, I learned to roll daily newspapers for delivery. Today, carriers use rubber bands and often come within a few yards of a porch. "Professionals" that we were, we had to put the paper on the porch, a skill equally demanding.

By the freshman year in high school, I was fascinated by the manual dexterity of workers in a trade film who were, believe it or not, lolly pop wrapper uppers. And that's what I wanted to be when I retired from the newspaper delivery field.

The list of incompetencies rolls on. Automation eliminated lolly pop factory jobs, so counselors in high school advised looking to other fields.

About this time, I was good at playing catch with a football, throwing back and forth to a friend, until I heaved one through a neon sign and had to pony up $30 for the experience. Why, you ask, would you play catch with a football around neon signs?

That was the same question the guy who owned the sign asked. I held up my incompetent hands, sighed, and said, wisdom flashing through like the blink of broken glass:

"I don't know. But I know there is one field left for me, one that needs the grace and finesse and class of a youth whose hands are too good for all the things they are meant to do."

"What," said the sign owner, sweeping up glass from his sign, "is that?"

"My first love, newspapers. They use presses and automatic machinery and require analytical thought and courage and other things hands cannot do."

"Of course," he said. "But have you ever thought of trying for custodian in a lolly pop factory. They are getting machines, but the floors still get dirty."

Not likely. The rest is history. I never took a job in that factory, but went on to greater things like sweeping up around machinery, when somebody was watching. And after a few years, they let me put these incredible fingers on one of their typewriters.

Of course, it jammed.

So I went to journalism school to put things in my head. My hands, like my heart, really never went to college. And the hands are really willing, but no abler than when they started with "52 pickup" which still takes me longer than anyone else to play.

Tumlinson Files For State Senator

Jack W. Tumlinson, Cameron realtor, has filed for the office of State Senator, 18th Senatorial District, in the Republican Primary according to J. Estel Johnston, chairman of the Milam County Republican Party.

Tumlinson will be the only local candidate on the Republican Primary ballot in Milam County, Johnston said.

State Sen. William N. Patman has filed for the same office in the Democratic Primary. Both are unopposed for the May primary elections.

SENIORS REHEARSE "Paint The Town Pink," a three-act comedy to be presented Thursday and Friday, March 2 and 3. The play shows what happens when a high school turns over its administration on "student day" and merry mixups result.

Redwood Benches, Fountain In Mall Committee's Planning

Planners for the downtown mall approved a general outline for a 70' x 210' park and two 70' x 210' areas for off street parking at a planning committee meeting Monday night.

The mall outline drawn by Urban Renewal engineers from suggestions made by the local Planning Committee, includes grassed areas, trees, redwood slat-type benches and a circular pool and fountain.

Dr. George Bowman, chairman of the Planning Committee, said suggested elevation for the mall ranged from 18" to 3 ft. above street level. He said walkways would be of rough agate concrete.

Planners discussed the possibility of a terraced effect for the mall, reaching the 3 ft. elevation in three or four broad terraces. Planners also suggested modular - type play equipment similar to that used on the Waco downtown mall, sculpture for the fountain area and a sprinkler system for grassed areas.

A. W. McCullin, Cameron Urban Renewal Director, said off - street parking in the mall area would add about 40 parking spaces.

McCullin also discussed incorporating the corner stone from the Auditorium Hotel with a replica of property lines in the original mall block. The square monument would be placed on the mall.

Subcommittees appointed by Dr. Bowman Monday night were:

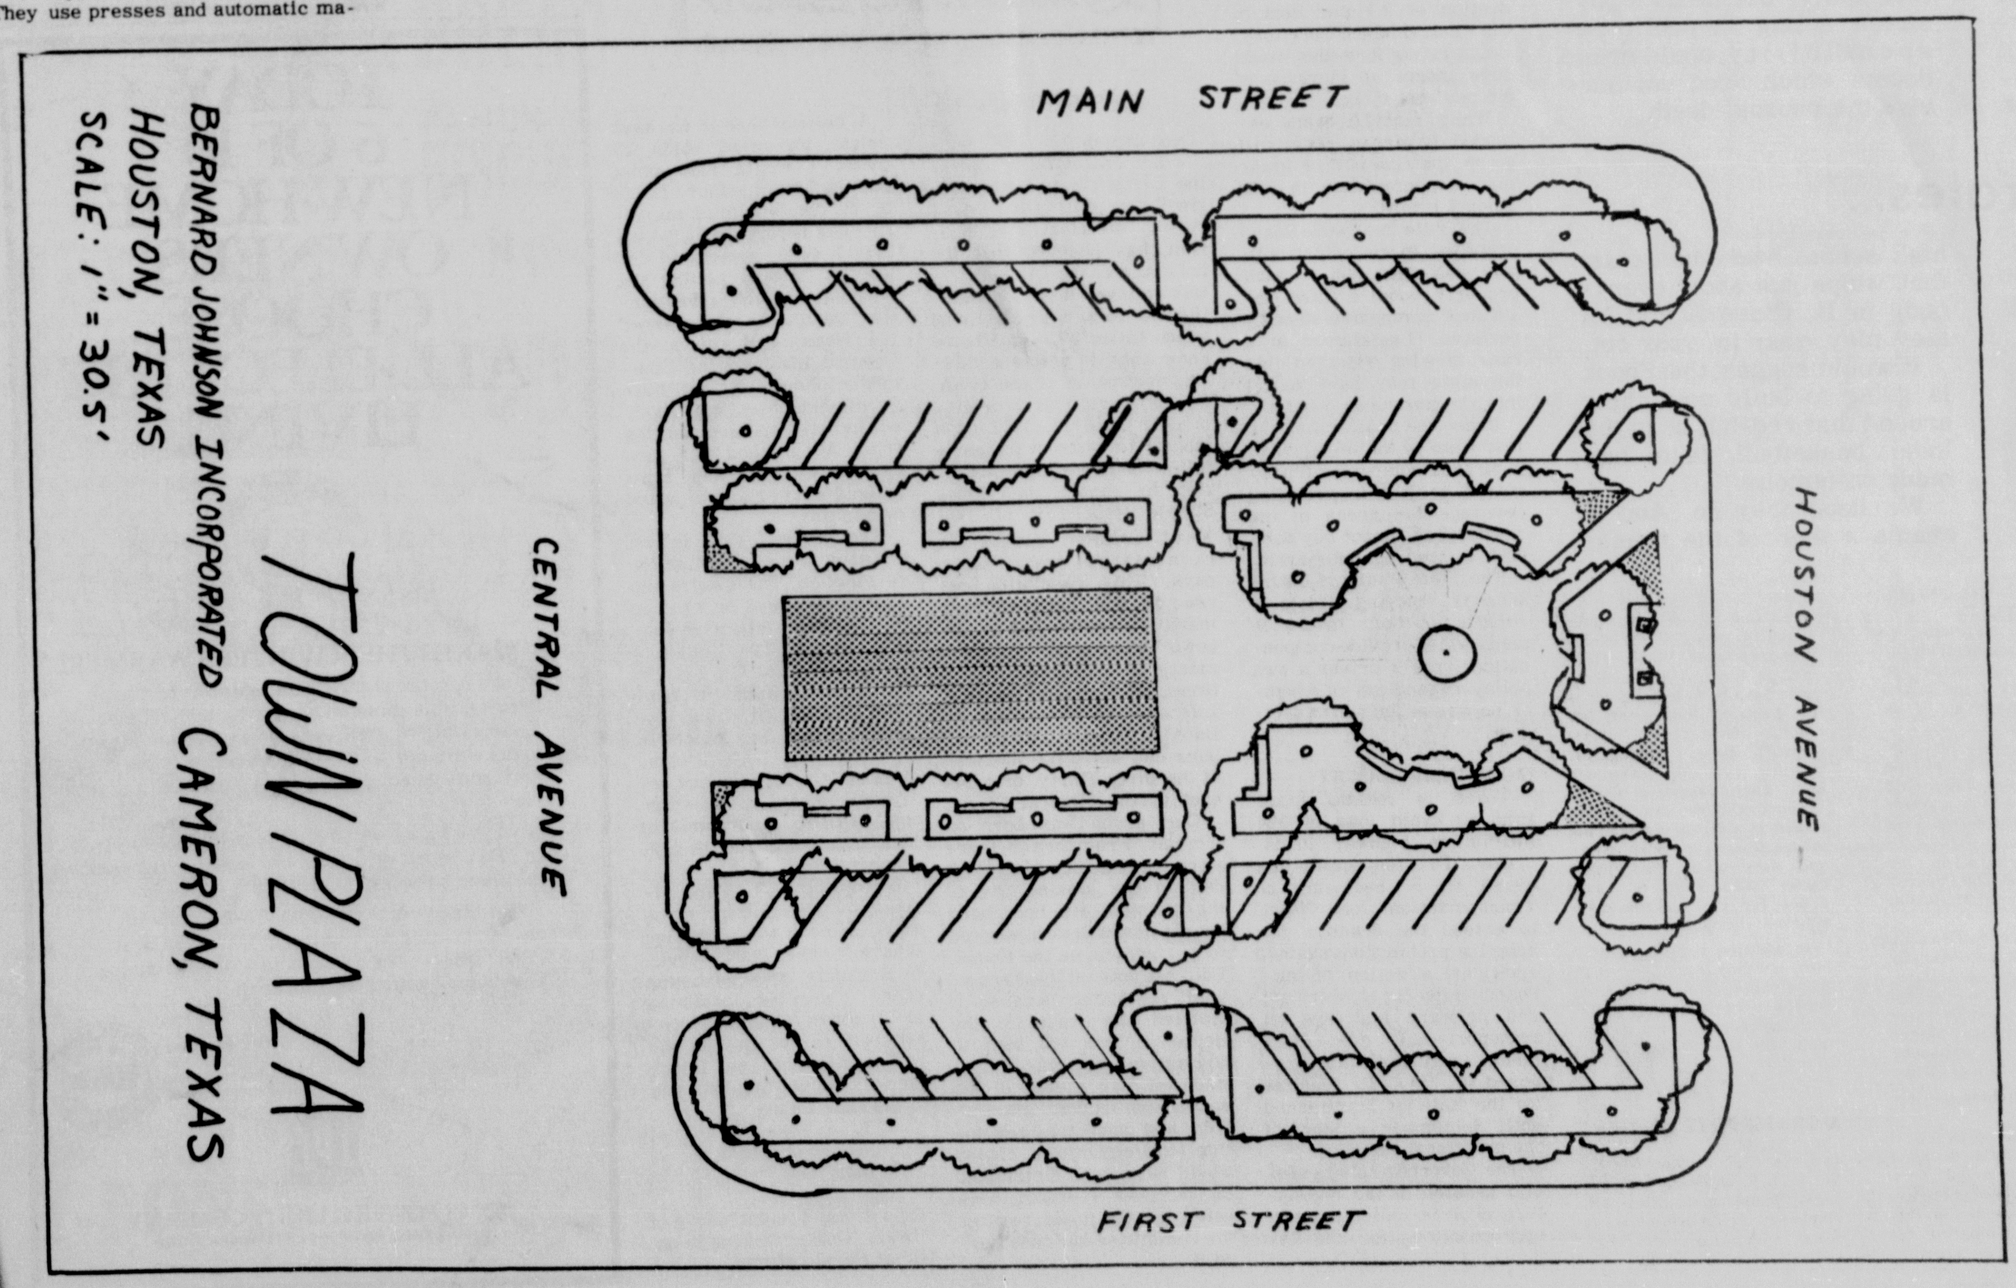
Corner-stone: Mrs. Ed Magre, Jack Tumlinson, Mrs. Perry Holder, Rev. Pete McCabe and Vonda Chandler.



Child Care Center Plans SpringOpening

Rev. Alvis Coleman, chairman of the Cameron Child Care Center Committee, met with state officials Wednesday to make final arrangements for licensing the proposed facility.

Rev. Coleman said the committee now hopes to open the Center in April or May pending completion of minor repairs and hiring of a director and assistant director.

The Child Care Center, which will be located at Travis and 3rd Streets, will have a maximum capacity of 20 pre-school age children. He said enrollment would be based on parents' need.

"We will not have any children whose parents could afford a baby sitter or private child care," Coleman said. "Our goal is to provide child care for pre-school children of welfare supported mothers so that they can be employed."

He said tentative plans were to charge $2 per week for the first child in a family and $1 for each additional child. He said the Center would probably be open from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. daily.

Coleman said heaters for the Center had been donated by the First United Methodist Church and tables and some chairs had been donated. He said they need about 10 more small chairs and additional play equipment.

Plans are to carpet some rooms in the house as funds are available.

A $300 donation was given to the Center by the Arts and Service League last month and proceeds from the League's March 1 luncheon have been pledged to the Center.

Two File For School Trustee

Dana Kestenbaum has filed for a place on the Cameron school board and Fredwill Hornung has filed for re-election to the board.

Terms of Hornung and Hilliard Thomas expire this April. Thomas has announced that he will not seek re-election.

Good News Over Bad...

We just fanned the February 21 edition of the Herald and found news and pictures which tell the changing story here:

"Milano Water Corp. to Expand". . . .

"New Street Requests. . ."

"Getting To Fires. . . ."

"Construction Moves on FB Office. . . ."

You get the notion. Things are amoving in Milam County, despite the lead story impact which said " '71 Ag Income Down' which showed crop income down $1.5 millions and government payments $639,000 less than the previous year.

The diversity of improvement is the remarkable part of what is going. Not just reconstruction downtown or just water system expansion or just street improvement or just additional rural fire service, but a spectrum of healthy growth in services and brick and mortar.

We are hit for running the "hard news" of death, accident and destruction. Little of that showed in the Monday edition. And it is likely no one noticed the good news far outweighed the bad.

County Coroner....

Now that the county is going modern in everything else, it might be worth considering the value of a county coroner or physician on call for coroner reports and juries.

Justices of the Peace in this and every non-metro Texas County are asked to rule on accidental or unusual violent death. And they are not qualified to pass judgment in all but the most obvious cases.

Any number of occasions call for an autopsy to determine for certain cause of death. A physician could determine the need or policies could be implemented which would require an autopsy when cause of death is questionable.

Texas metro cities have coroners to assist the judiciary in such cases. It is not a question of Justice competence in interpreting statutes. It is a question of medical competence which they don't have.

A county coroner in Milam County would be called on infrequently, but he as a physician acting in public responsibility could erase doubts which need not survive the unusual death.

Snook Incorporates...

When Snook calls a vote to incorporate, you know rural Central Texas is going metro.

The community of Snook, by 65 to 17, voted to incorporate the other day. It will mean a council-mayor government.

Snook's chief claim to fame until this vote was a high school basketball team that whips just about everybody in B, Class A and AA they play, year in, year out.

It would suggest that Snook is going to build something around that red-hot hoop the local basketball team has made so famous.

We hope they do. And it seems a sign of the times.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

JAPAN LOSES: WORK MOVED BACK TO U.S.

REP. JOSEPH M. GAYDOS (Pa.) ". . . I would like to call the attention of my colleagues to a most significant and important news article which appeared in . . . the Pittsburgh Press. . .

"The report is significant because Volkswagen buys nearly 500,000 car radios a year from Motorola. It is important because those radios now will be stamped "Made in U.S.A." and that spells jobs in our electronic industry. . . The news article follows:

MOTOROLA SHIFTING WORK BACK TO UNITED STATES

Wolfsburg, Germany. -- Major radio manufacturing facilities are being transferred from Japan back to the United States by Motorola, it is reported here.

Reliable sources in this world headquarters of the Volkswagen automobiles said Motorola is switching production of its car radios supplied to VW.

Volkswagen buys in the neighborhood of 500,000 car radios a year from Motorola, they said.

While no figures were available here, the order obviously runs to millions of dollars.

One likely factor behind Motorola's decision to move out of Japan is the new higher exchange rates for Japanese yen plus the devalued dollar agreed to in Washington Dec. 18.

The yen went up nearly 8 percent and the dollar dropped about the same amount. This adds a nearly 16 per cent price advantage to buying in the United States compared to Japan.

The rise in the yen comes on top of steadily increasing costs in Japan. Some electronics and textile manufactures have been leaving Japan for Tiawan, Hong Kong and other lower-cost areas. Among those moving or building new foreign plants have been Japanese firms.

Sources here said Volkswagen is actively considering other American built parts and accessories for their cars. Under study is a big order for car electric generators, they said.

In addition wages at Wolfsburg actually are higher than those paid by some Volksburg suppliers in the United States (although certainly not in Detroit,) the sources said.

Insurance Makes Headlines On Three Fronts In Austin

By Bill Boykin

Insurance again made headline news on three fronts here.

* President Nixon's Phase 2 inflation controls, the State Insurance Board said, will mean lower premium rates for hundreds of thousands of Texas homeowners.

* Lawmakers threatened to "put the state in the insurance business" unless rates are reduced for a new catastrophe pool designed to protect hurricane and other disaster - prone areas.

* An American Insurance Association executive offered to "guarantee" that no-fault auto insurance in Texas would bring a minimum cut of 25 per cent in bodily injury and property damage coverage rates.

New homeowners' insurance rates are expected to be issued May 1, effective June 1. A federal price commission order of a 37.5 per cent cut in the Board's "trend factor" (aimed at keeping rates up with normal inflation) may mean a reduction of 2.1 per cent in the Central Inland Territory. Usual rating formulas would have meant an increase of 5.9 per cent there.

While most fire and extended coverage rates will go up, the rise will be lower than expected due to new federal limits.

The State Insurance Board proposes to cut catastrophe pool rates for non - beach property about a third. Insurance companies strongly resisted. Legislators at a rate hearing retorted that the state may have to get into the insurance business.

Under the pool, authorized last year by the legislature, insurance companies are required to join in providing coverage for areas of the coast which cannot buy policies in the regular market.

The State Board of Insurance is studying effects of various no-fault insurance plans which provide compensation from a driver's own policy regardless of whether he was at fault in an accident.

MORE TIME SOUGHT

Texas is seeking more time to avoid loss of $24 million in highway funds.

Gov. Preston Smith has asked U. S. Secretary of Transportation John Volpe to extend the deadline for adopting prohibitions against additional erection of billboards adjacent to interstate and primary highways. A transportation department hearing officer proposed a May 31 deadline for the state act. Smith asked until September 1, start of the new fiscal year.

The Governor noted a special session of the legislature must be called to enact appropriations for the fiscal year beginning September 1.

The session may be timed before May 31, Smith said, but a later date would be "preferable."

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes said the potential penalty of $24 million for lack of a billboard act demands that Smith call an immediate special session of the legislature.

BRINE DISCHARGES HIT

Parks and Wildlife Department Executive Director James Cross told a Senate study committee the Railroad Commission overruled 100 P.W.D. objections to brine discharges into public waters last year.

The Railroad Commission has authority to permit the discharges from oil field operations, although P.W.D. has assinged responsibilities to protect marine life.

A Commission staff member could remember no case where an oil operator's application for a discharge permit had been turned down. He said the Commission attempts to "educate" operators to avoid oil spills or threatens to revoke production allowables where conditions appear likely to cause spillage.

Cross suggested reviving of a bill to authorize the state to demand compensation for fish kills due to pollution.

AG OPINIONS

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin held the state cannot pay the cost of primary elections without legislative authorization and appropriation, but he went back to a Dallas federal court for guidance.

Letters to the Editor

February 18, 1972

Dear Frank:

I am enclosing a copy of the Dirty Thirty voting record for your files. At a recent meeting, my opponent has charged that the only vote of the Dirty Thirty was an investigative resolution by Rep. Farenthold which failed 118-30. Please know that this was a misrepresentation of the truth.

The Dirty Thirty originated on Feb. 16, 1971 on a motion to instruct the committee on House Administration to report the House Simple Resolution of Rep. Neil Caldwell out of the committee within seven days. This resolution requested that each of those members implicated by the news media make a statement concerning the allegations on National Bankers Life and the Sharpstown Bank. I voted for this measure and am a full member of the Dirty Thirty, or preferably, the Reform Group.

Our group was born on this day. From then on, there were many issues. From that day to the closing day of the session, we had many issues on which we attempted to get reform in the House. I did not vote on the Farenthold resolution because it violated the rules in the House. It was not sent to committee, and only a limited few had a copy of the resolution. If Rep. Farenthold had sent this resolution to a committee, copies would have been distributed to us, and I would have voted for the measure after the committee had considered it.

I believe that if we have rules, we must abide by them. I would also point out that this measure failed by an overwhelming majority. The records will reflect that I co - sponsored and worked toward getting the support for the investigative resolution that passed the House and set up the General Investigating Committee. Since that time, these people have been investigated, indicted and are awaiting trial. My method was successful whereas Rep. Farenthold's measure failed completely.

The Dirty Thirty is not an issue in my campaign for re-election. The issue is who can do the most or who can be the most effective legislator in the Texas House of Representatives for Falls. Milam and Williamson Counties during the next two years. I will not resort to mud slinging, but will campaign on my efforts and accomplishments in education, agriculture, environmental control and economy in government.

I have had a fulltime office in the district since 1969, and my wife Zana and I have lived at 2004 Murray in Rockdale since assuming office. I have been available at all times to help my constituents in the district and will continue to be. I look forward to visiting with you in the near future.

Yours very truly,
Dan Kubiak

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

I wish you'd help me out. I've just completed writing an autobiography of Christopher Columbus and need your help in finding a publisher who'll advance me $650,000 with a check made out to C. Columbus. Once that sandbar is cleared it'll be easy sailing as I guarantee there'll be no telephone calls from him denying he ever heard of me.

I have a letter which I am now having a New York firm of experts confirm is in Columbus' handwriting, but despite this I don't intend to offer parts of the book to Life magazine as I have a feeling the people there at the moment would not be interested.

Speaking of handwriting experts, I am very interested in the reaction of the firm which at first reported that the letter from Howard Hughes to Clifford Irving was genuine, that unqestionably it was in the billionaire's handwriting.

Then when the whole thing started falling apart the firm announced it was "revising" its first opinion and that maybe the writing wasn't genuine after all.

It seems to me this method of handling a situation ought to be available to others.

For example, think how many thousands of college students there are right now who'd like to "revise" some of the answers they gave on their last exam. Think of the politicians who on reading today what they said yesterday would like to revise their remarks in a hurry. I can't think of any offhand but there may be some newspapers who'd like to get in on this, or at least have it ready just in case.

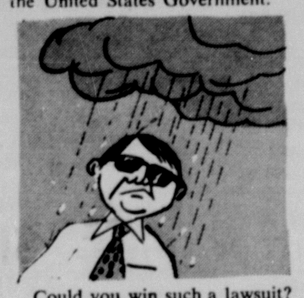
I don't know of anybody who, if he talks long enough, wouldn't like to revise in one direction something he said flat-footedly in the opposite direction the day before and I hope this New York firm of handwriting experts hasn't copyrighted the system.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Sue The Weatherman

"Fair and warmer," says the weather man's morning forecast, and you dress accordingly. But during the day a cloudburst hits town, drenching—and ruining—your clothes. You might feel a distinct urge to sue the weatherman for damages. Or, to be more technical, to sue his employer, the United States Government.



Could you win such a lawsuit? A quick answer would be no, because a weather forecast is only an educated guess, not a guarantee. But what if the weatherman was not only wrong but also guilty of negligence in making his prediction?

That complicates matters. Consider this case:

A hurricane was bearing down on a coastal city, and the weather bureau issued a series of warnings. But the winds and flood waters arrived several hours ahead of the predicted time. A woman, caught on low land, was drowned.

"I realize," he told the court "that weather predicting is not an exact science. But this was worse than just a mistake. It was outright negligence. They had discovered that the storm was coming in ahead of schedule, but they failed to pass the word along to the public."

Nevertheless, the court turned down his claim. The judge said the government cannot be held liable for broad, generalized activities like forecasting the weather because this would place too heavy a burden upon basic governmental functions.

But that may not apply to weather forecasting in a limited, specific situation. Thus:

The weather bureau at an airport, although aware of air turbulence near the ground, failed to warn the pilot of a private plane that was just taking off. The plane crashed, the pilot was killed, and the government was sued for damages.

This time, the government was indeed held liable. The court decided that in a particular, localized situation like this, the government ought to pay the penalty for its negligence—just like any other wrongdoer.

State Bar Holds 'No-Fault' Debate

AUSTIN

An overflow crowd of incumbent legislators and candidates, along with members of the Texas Board of Insurance, attended a debate sponsored by the State Bar of Texas on "No-Fault" insurance.

National expert, David Sargent, law professor from Boston, Mass., and Melvin Stark, vice - president for government affairs of the American Insurance Association. aregued the financial and social impact of various "No-Fault" proposals. Both agreed generally that "No - Fault" is not fully meeting public expectations.

"Your insurance commissioners here in Texas have estimated that rates would double or triple under 'No - Fault', " commented Sargent. "When you have some of the lowest rates in the nation, why experiment with something totally unproved? Your bodily injury, or fault, rates in Texas have gone down 10 per cent over the last four years. Your property damage rates, which are "No-Fault', have gone up over 50 per cent in the same period."

" 'No - Fault' abolishes traditional concepts of right and wrong," asserted Sargent in the beginning remarks. "Under 'No-Fault' it doesn't matter how you drive or whether you are drunk or drugged. If you pay everybody, the 'No - Fault' economic principle is simple. You take away benefits from the good driver to give token benefits to the careless driver."

Sargent declared that he was not opposed to the concept of "No-Fault" as first party coverage that would reimburse out of pocket expenses. "But, this is health and accident insurance," he explained, "and it is available now in Texas at far less cost than in proposed 'No-Fault' schemes."

Stark's opening remarks noted that "You can not achieve savings in a revised system of compensating auto accident victims unless there is restriction of the tort remedy. In other words, you balance reduced cost by reduction of certain benefits."

AIA's plan, according to Stark, is not based on traditional negligence law, but on a straight insurance contract. He insisted that "radical surgery is necessary rather than band-aid treatment for today's auto reparations system."

Reporting on experience in Massachusetts during that state's first year under "No -Fault" law, Sargent quoted opinion polls of accident victims charging delay and lower settlement. "The insurance companies were forced to lower their rates 15 per cent by law," Sargent specified, "but, they paid 80 per cent less and made huge profits the first year. That is why they are pushing so hard for 'No-Fault' compulsory coverage." Stark did not believe a federal "No-Fault" plan would be inacted in 1972.

B.I.G. Meeting Told Of Price Freeze Pressure

By Bill McCutchen

A small delegation from Milam County attended the B.I.G. area meeting in Waco, January 15th and heard Dr. Ty Timm, Head of the Department of Agricutlural Economics and Rural Sociology at Texas A&M, warn the group that a lot of pressure was being applied on the present administration for a price freeze on agricultural commodities.

Dr. Timm said that most of the population was urban and would likely favor such a move by the administration. He said this being an election year would make such a move very tempting.

Gene Klein, a young farmer in the Burlington community and chairman of the B.I.G. economics and marketing committee told the group that in his opinion more and more farmers would be buying and selling on the futures market in the future. Gene said that this was likely because a farmer could lock in a price for his produce taking some of the gamble out of the fluctuating market and he would have price assurance when talking to his banker about an operating loan.

Others attending the meeting from Milam County included John A. Smith, B.I.G. representative from the county, John Snell, Assoc. CAA, and myself, CAA. Alternate represenatives Frank Kratochvil, and Joe Mueck were unable to attend because of farming operations.

COTTON MEETING

The annual Milam County cotton meeting last Tuesday night in the Cameron Vocational Agriculture Building was well attended even with good weather and a lot of farming activity underway.

The cotton meeting is cosponsored each year by the Milam County Farm Bureau and they furnished refreshments at the meeting.

Fred Elliott, cotton specialist emphasized the importance of good quality seed cotton. Elliott exhibited data showing that weak seed produced a weak plant that would not fully recover and would result in a poor and uneven stand a poor crop.

Elliott also encouraged farmers to use herbicides sparingly and to the best advantage, adding that banding in most cases would cut herbicide costs and do the job. He said that heavy use of herbicides in some areas had eliminated the easy to kill weeds and the hard to kill weeds like nutgrass were moving in.

In commenting on broadcast or narrow row cotton, Elliott said that broadcast plantings thus far have not shown enough advantage over conventional planting methods to justify a farmer's investment in high price machinery to plant and harvest the crop. He said that weed control was also much more difficult. Elliott said that Texas, Louisiana, and Mississippi are entering into a joint research effort on narrow row and broadcast cotton and some good information should be available soon.

Dr. Clifford E. Hoelscher, Extension Entomologist spoke on a wide range of material and drew questions on Temik, a new cotton systemic insecticide that is being widely advertised in the area.

Hoelscher said that it was the Extension Services' decision not to recommend the material this year as there was insufficient data available in Texas to make a recommendation.

He said that of nine Temik demonstrations he worked with last year, eight of them did show yield increases. He added that there was some concern about beneficial insect population damage and the possibility of boll worm buildups.

Hoelscher encouraged growers that were interested in the material to try it on a small acreage and compare it to their normal early season insect control program.

How To Plant Roses

Planting roses properly requires niether skill nor experience. Simply follow the easy procedure outlined below. Essentials for success with roses are: good, healthy plants, a well prepared bed with good drainage and a minimum of at least a half a day of sunshine in the area in which the roses are planted.

Position rose on mound so that bud union (swelling at base of stem) is level with the ground. Spread roots naturally down slope of mound, pruning off any broken pieces. Prune all canes to 12".

Prepare bed. Dig hole 15" to 18" wide and as deep. Add quart of peat moss. Mix well with soil. Form a mound of the mixed soil and peat in the center.

—Fill remainder of hole with water and allow to drain. See that bud union remains at ground level. After water drains, fill remainder of hole with soil and tamp.

Work in soil around roots to eliminate any air pockets. Fill hole three-fourths full and firm with foot or tamper.

-Mound soil around and over plant to height of 8 to 10". This protects the rose canes from drying out. When buds break, gradually remove mound of soil — probably within a week to ten days.

COTTON BOARD

The newest member of the 20-man Cotton Board which administers a research and promotion program for upland cotton in the United States is Jack Funk of Harlingen. His alternate is Charles Mayfield of Taft. Other Texans on the board are Roy B. Davis of Lubbock, J. B. Cooper, Jr., of Roscoe, John W. Nigliazzo of Hearne and George Lee Smith of Prairie View. Each cotton producing state is represented on the board.

CUT CROP DISEASES

Certain management practices can reduce disease losses to corn and grain sorghum with little or no additional expense. These include crop rotation, wise variety selection, Johnsongrass control and a knowledge of disease problems. Variety selection is a key practice.

MARVIN FINCH, Mertens—"I planted a small amount of G-522 four years ago. I liked it well enough that for the last three years I have planted my acreage to G-522. In 1972, I will also plant my grain crop to G-522. It is as good a hybrid as I can plant."

LOUIS JANDA, JR., Abbott—"I have planted G-522 for three years. It is a very dependable hybrid. I will plant part of my 1972 grain acres to G-522 along with Funk's G-393."

RAY LOVELESS, Milford—"I have planted G-522 for four years. It has consistently been the top performer for me. The yield has been excellent compared to other hybrids. Its standability and threshability is very good. It comes up good and grows off fast, and it's a money-maker."

These central Texas farmers planted Funk's G-522 during the past several years.

THEY LIKE G-522... AND SO WILL YOU!

BOBBY ARMSTRONG, Barry—"Compared to a competitive, G-522 had a greener stalk and leaves during the drouth. It also was the highest yielding hybrid of the four varieties that we planted in 1971. G-522's standability was good compared to the other hybrids."

RONNIE LOVELESS, Irene—"I have used G-522 on part of my acreage for three years. In 1972, the majority of my grain acres will be G-522. I like the way G-522 stands up, yields and threshes."

EDMUND SEBESTA, JR., Somerville—"We averaged approximately 4,200 pounds on 26 acres. G-522 has been in a test on my farm for four years. It has consistently been the top yielding hybrid. I am well pleased with the total performance."

Israeli Detector Tests Heartbeats

By Susan Poyas
Reuter Correspondent

JERUSALEM

Israeli scientists have invented a machine like a small portable tape recorder which can detect the onset of a heart attack.

The "detector," which records every one of the 115,000 beats the heart makes during 24-hours, is the first of its kind in operation anywhere in the world, the scientists claim.

Professor Shlomo Stern, of the medicine department at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, who heads the project, says the main innovation is that a continuous round - the - clock study of the heart can be conducted while the patient leads a normal everyday life.

He can perform such activities as working, relaxing or sleeping, as well as facing the average tensions a person generally experiences, while the test is being carried out, the professor adds.

"This allows us to study the dynamic and physiolocical actions of each patient as he carries out his normal activities," Stern says.

Up to now, most doctors have relied on a short two or three-minute diagnosis of the heart's activity by an electro - cardiogram (E. C.G.) while the patient lies in bed. Alternatively, there is the regular "E.C.G. after effort," like walking up and down for a few minutes.

Sponsored by a joint research fund by the Hebrew University and the Hadassah Hospital, the new Israeli study is conducted by the cardiac station at the Strauss Health Center in downtown Jerusalem.

The center, opened in January 1971, provides a free service for all doctors. It handles about 50 patients of all ages monthly. They are sent by their own doctors, who in turn receive a written diagnosis of the results.

On the technical side, the Israeli innovation consists of three pieces of equipment, the first is a small machine similar to a portable tape recorder. The patient carries the machine with wires leading from it attached to his body to record the heartbeat.

The second piece of equipment is an electro - cardioscanner on which the tape is rerun. The recorded heartbeats on the oscilloscope are closely watched by a trained physician. The tape is then relayed to the third machine, the electro-cardio-charter, which graphically records the heartbeat on paper for a more detailed study.

The patient must write down any activity during the 24-hour period and a clock set on the two latter machines enables doctors to observe a direct correlation between the patient's recorded activity and any disturbance noted on the tape.

The process of playing back the 24-hour tape takes two to three hours during which time the highly accurate machines graph every single heartbeat.

The recorded results are sometimes startling, Stern says. In some cases patients are found to suffer severe heart disturbances that require immediate treatment. On the other hand, people sent to the station with complaints of periodic fatigue or other symptoms may turn out to have a perfectly normal heart.

City History Is Program

"A History of Downtown Cameron" was the program for the Business and Professional Women's Club when they met Monday evening in the B&PW Clubhouse.

Mrs. Vance Werner presented the program, reviewing the early businesses in Cameron

Following a brief business meeting, Mrs. K. K. Robbins and Mrs. Willie Faulkner served refreshments to members attending.

COLLEGE NOTES

Births

To Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kuzel of Buckholts, a girl, Avery Lane, born Feb. 14 at 11:30 a.m. at Halbert Hospital in Rosebud. She is welcomed by a sister, Carla Dawn and a brother, Jeffery Kent. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Junek of Buckholts and Mrs. W. E. Kuzel of Buckholts.

Hard Working? Even Picnics Can't Tempt Some Lazy Ants

Some ants are so lazy they won't even stir out of the nest for a picnic.

In fact, male ants never work a day in their brief lives. Their only duty is to mate--and die.

A few of the hard - working females loaf on the job. And almost any ant will take a nap, but out of sight in the middle of its nest, thus preserving the family image.

Most ants, however, deserve their industrious reputation. Their great physical capacities and complex societies have helped them survive for some 70 million years, the National Geographic Society says.

The highly adaptable ants have spread all over the world, though they prefer the tropics and avoid arctic regions. The ant family Formicidae numbers about 6,000 species, ranging in size from 1/25th of an inch to more than an inch long.

Caste System Prevails

Like bees, ants are social insects living in colonies. Three castes dwell in an ant community: the queen ant, an amazing egg-laying machine; worker ants, sterile females who serve as nursemaids and soldiers; and males, who expire shortly after their nuptial flight with the queen.

After the flight, the queen establishes a colony, building herself a small nest in the earth, under a rock, or in a decayed tree. She lays a few eggs, tending them until a small nucleus of workers develops.

From then on, the queen does nothing but lay eggs. Her single mating leaves her productive for as long as 15 years.

Female workers excavate the nest, clean it, forage for food, care for the young, and defend the colony. Their work is never done. But entomologists studying army ants in Panama found that about 20 percent of the workers were careless housekeepers and lax nursemaids.

The leaf-cutting ants of tropical America are farmers. They cut tree leaf segments and carry them back to their immense nest -- often 16 feet deep -- where they are used as beds for fungus spores. The ants plant and tend the fungus, their principal food.

Ants Make "Bread"

European harvester ants gather seeds and grain, storing them in granaries deep in their nests. After the harvesters husk the seeds, a "chewing society" assembles to masticate them for hours at a time. Saliva transforms the starch into sugar, and the result is a nourishing "ant bread."

Harvester workers take naps within the nest, but often rest at strategic passageways, where they block the way. Worker ants who act as guards usually have a thick skull protected by a helmet-tough skin.

Soldiers are essential, because, as a leading entomologist said, "Most ant societies are organized for total warfare. . . .Fighting goes on constantly." The blood - red slavemaker ants of the United States raid other colonies to steal pupae. When the stolen ants hatch, they take over the work in their masters' nests.

Ants undoubtedly are successful, but they aren't infallible. With single - minded dedication, workers that specialize in nest - building may dig away until the whole nest caves in.

SPRING FASHIONS such as those modeled by (from left) Mrs. Billy McCutchen, Mrs. Durwood Cobb and Miss Christine Laws, will be featured in "Buttons and Bows", the cotton fashion preview to be held Saturday, February 26, 7:30 p.m. in the Methodist Fellowship Hall, Cameron. The show is sponsored by the Milam County Farm Bureau, the Milam County Cotton Industry and the Milam County Extension Service. About 45 models will show clothes for ages 18 months to grandmothers and grandfathers.

Gallery Wall Effective

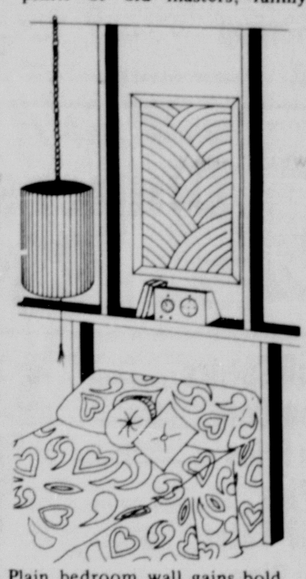
An art wall, a decorating trick that enhances any room, is within easy reach of most families, not just the wealthy. Richness comes with an imaginative choice of wall covering used as background.

A gallery on living or dining room wall can display whatever is most pleasing—inexpensive prints of old masters, family photographs, contemporary prints, or original paintings by friends or family members.

These can be framed and matted without spending a fortune, using a miter saw and any of a wide variety of molding patterns available at lumber dealers.

Other art walls display small sculptures or wood carvings, pottery, china collections or antiques on shelves of western pine boards.

For a neutral background, choose light-toned western hemlock paneling and where more color and pattern is acceptable the deeper hues of western red cedar boards are suggested.



Plain bedroom wall gains bold interest with dark-stained framing of 2x6-inch western pine, also useful as bookshelf.

Cameron HD Club Topic Is 'Fashion'

Miss Christine Laws presented a program on "Fabrics and Fashions" for the February meeting of the Cameron Home Demonstration Club.

The Club met in the home of Mrs. B. D. Clark. Special guests were Mrs. John Cass Walden and Miss Laws.

Gas Drying

Electric Drying

Either we're four times cheaper, or they're four times more expensive.

Gas drying is not only easier on your pocketbook, it also makes life a whole lot easier.

For one thing, gas drying practically eliminates the need for ironing. The new gas dryers are so gentle that clothes come out almost wrinkle-free. Clothes are tumbled dry, then cooled, and gently fluffed. Automatically. Pleats stay pleated. Creases stay creased.

All this for a cost of about a penny a load. (Or $2.00 a ton.)

Take a look at the new gas dryers at your gas appliance dealer. Then do something nice for yourself.

And your pocketbook.

You Don't Say . . .

AMORAL

correctly if you are saying AM uh rul.

AMORAL is pronounced uh MOR ul and means "not subject to or concerned with moral or ethical judgment. Lacking a sense of right and wrong: lacking moral responsibility".

IMMORAL means violating moral principles knowingly; consciously wicked, dissolute, evil, etc.

Common Household Items Can Make Camping Fun

A few common household items can mean the difference between success and failure on a camping trip.

Aluminum foil, for example, can make the camper's life easier. A large piece can be transported in the hip pocket, and it can be as versatile as the user's imagination.

Campers have found that by wrapping a piece of dry ice in foil and placing it in the bottom of their ice box, they can increase the life expectancy of their regular ice.

A piece of foil wrapped around one side of a lantern will almost double the intensity of the light.

Silver spoons, or anything chrome, can be polished with a wad of foil. The foil on a bait bucket or canteen will reflect the sun's heat and keep the water cooler.

Petroleum jelly is almost as versatile as foil. It can be used on chapped lips, or it can be used on reels, gun parts, pocket knives and axes to prevent rust.

If burrs on a dog's coat are smeared with the jelly, they can be removed easily. And the jelly is good for temporarily waterproofing boots and shoes as well as those last few feet of fly line.

Here are a few more tips which will make life easier on a camping trip:

Freeze water in muffin pans. The ice will last longer in your ice box because the chunks are larger than the ones you buy.

If you puncture you oil pan on a sharp rock, patch it temporarily with candle wax. This will at least get you to town.

If you are unsure about the sources of water at your destination, take along a little laundry bleach. One drop will purify about eight ounces of water.

And if your car gets zapped by sap, rinse the finish with your favorite cola drink. But be sure to wash off the cola afterwards. Otherwise you'll draw more flies than a garbage truck.

Planning is the key to having a good time, and the key to planning is anticipating your needs. A few items such as those mentioned will take up very little space, but they could mean the difference between a fun camping trip and one which is not so much fun.

DOORS OF YOE

By Marilyn Hauk

The halls of Yoe High look like a solid mass of paper this week. Students are vigorously promoting themselves for student council offices.

Merlin came to visit Yoe High last Thursday and Friday. David Hornung, maybe it would be a good idea to chain your valuables to you when you assist in a magic act. Jenny Cryer, did boyfriend Ben smell good after eating that fancy onion?

San Antonio was invaded by the Yoe High Spanish Club last week. Poor Mrs. Tumlinson, what is it like to wake up to see strings of toilet paper waving in the breeze?

Some of the sophomores almost stayed in San Antonio when they were lost for an hour or so. Gary Thweatt, how do you like raw oysters? Miss Cobb, it wasn't nice to break out in measles on the way to the Alamo City!

The barbed wire symbolizes this earth we live in — filled with war, hatred, greed. Transcending the ugliness of this world is the Cross, symbol of Christ's sacrifice for us, the promise of eternal life.

But we don't have to wait till death for a better life. We can do something about that barbed wire. More understanding, and selfless—not selfish—action would do much to purge our world of ugliness.

God's Church is the natural means of resolving discord. Human nature being what it is, heaven on earth is impossible. But improvement on earth is possible — necessary!

How you can spend every cent of your take-home pay and save money at the same time.

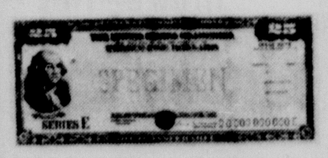
Simple.

Just sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. That way, an amount you specify is automatically set aside from your check every payday and invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

The money you've been planning to tuck away every payday is tucked away for you, before you can get your ever-spending hands on it.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U. S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

So go ahead and spend every cent you take home. But make sure you join the Payroll Savings Plan first. You'll be richer for the experience.



Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
With higher paying U.S. Savings Bonds.
